

But in this world nothing can be said to be certain,
except death and taxes.

Benjamin Franklin