

The will of the people is the only legitimate foundation of any government, and to protect its free expression should be our first object.

Thomas Jefferson