

When I first met men I listened to their words and took their deeds on trust. When I meet them now, I listen to their words and watch their deeds.

– Confucius