Foreword

FRIENDSHIP is one of the most important things in the world. As a factor in educating the mind, forming the character, guiding the will, and shaping the destiny, the influence of Friendship can scarcely be overrated. Friendship has made a man a hero, a saint, a demon!

It is to be hoped, therefore, that these Dolden Thoughts on Friendship-garnered from a wide field-will prove helpful and inspiring and tend to create pure and noble ideals in the minds of readers.

The touching story of David and Jonathan surpassing charm for to possess a humanity; and the voyager over Life's ocean who discovers a true friend discovers an island offering a safe, quiet haven from every storm that blows, and which presents innumerable luscious fruits and sweet-scented flowers for his refreshment and enjoyment.

a. E. S.

Nature loves nothing solitary, and always reaches out to something as a support, which ever in the sweetest friend is most delightful.

Golden Link of Friendship - Copywork for Children
A friend whom you have been gaining during your whole life, you ought not to be displeased with in a moment. A stone is many years becoming a ruby; take care that you do not destroy it in an instant against another stone.
- Saadi

Once let friendship be given that is born of Zod, nor time nor circumstance can change it to a lessening; it must be mutual growth, increasing trust, widening faith, enduring patience, forgiving love, unselfish ambition-an affection built before the Throne, that will bear the test of time and trial.
- Allan Throckmorton

A	man	that	hath	friends	must	show	himself
frie	endly:	and a	there i	is a frie	nd that	t sticker	th closer
the	in a b	rother.
_	- Prove	rbs xv	iii. 24	1

You'll never hope
To be such friends, for instance she and you,
As when you hunted cowslips in the woods
Or played together in the meadow hay.
Oh yes-with age, respect comes, and your worth
Is felt, there's growing sympathy of tastes,
There's ripened friendship, there's confirmed esteem.
- Robert Browning

Plant thou the tree of friendship only; so shall thy heart's desire bear fruit:
Uproot thou hatred's plant completely, or woes unnumbered thence may shoot.
- Hafiz

Friendship's an abstract of this noble flame,
Tis love refin'd, and purged from all its dross,
Tis next to angels' love, if not the same,
As strong in passion is, though not so gross.
- Catherine Philips

Dolden friendship is not a common thing to be picked up in the street There are pearls of the heart, which cannot be thrown to swine.
- Hugh Black

Friendship, peculiar boon of Heaven,
The noble mind's delight and pride,
To men and angels only given,
To all the lower world denied.

For perfect friendship it may be said to require natures so rare and costly, so well tempered each,
and so happily adapted, and withal so

The pledge of Friendship! it is still divine,
Though watery floods have quenched its burning wine;
Whatever vase the sacred drops may hold,
The gourd, the shell, the cup of beaten gold,
Around its brim the bond of Nature throws
A garland sweeter than the banquet's rose.
- O. W. Holmes

O friend, my bosom said,

Through thee alone the sky is arched,

Through thee the rose is red;

All things through thee take nobler form,

And look beyond the earth,

The mill-round of our fate appears a sun-path in thy worth.

Me too thy nobleness has taught

To master my despair;

The fountains of my hidden life

are through thy friendship fair.

- Emerson

Thick waters show no images of things;
Friends are each other's mirrors, and should be

O, weary hearts! O, slumbering eyes!

O, drooping souls, whose destinies are fraught with fear and pain,

Ye shall be loved again!

No one is so accursed by fate,

No one so utterly desolate,

Responds unto his own.

Responds, - as if with unseen wings,

An angel touched its quivering strings;

There be three sorts of friends: the first is like a torch we meet in a dark street; the second is like a candle in a lantern that we overtake; the third is like a link that offers itself to the stumbling passenger. The met torch is the sweet-lipped friend, which lends us a flash of compliment for the time, but quickly leaves us to our former darkness. The over-taken lantern is the true friend, which, though it promise but a faint light, yet it goes along with us as far as it can to our journey's end. The offered link is the mercenary friend, which though it be ready enough to do us service, yet that service hath a servile relation to our bounty.

Of the bewildering masquerade of Life,

Where strangers walk as friends and friends as strangers;

Where whispers overheard betray false hearts;

And through the mazes of the crowd we chase

Some form of loveliness, that smiles, and beckons,

And cheats us with fair words, only to leave us

A mockery and a jest; maddened, confused,-

Not knowing friend from foe.

– Burns

There is no treasure the which may be compared unto a faithful friend;

Dold soone decayeth, and worldly wealth consumeth and wasteth in the winde:

We walk alone in the world. Friends such as we desire are dreams and fables. But a sublime hope cheers ever the faithful heart, that elsewhere, in other regions of the universal power, souls are now acting, enduring, and daring, which can love us and which we can love.

- Emerson

Alas! they had been friends in youth;

Our friendships hurry to short and poor conclusions, because we have made them a texture of wine and dreams, instead of the tough fibre of the human heart. The laws of friendship are great, austere, and eternal, of one web with the laws of nature and of morals.

- Emerson

Each spoke words of high disdain

And insult to his heart's best brother:

They parted-ne'er to meet again!

But never either found another

To free the hollow heart from paining-

They stood aloof, the scars remaining,

Like cliffs which had been rent asunder;

A dreary sea now flows between.

But neither heat, nor frost, nor thunder,

Shall wholly do away, I ween,

The marks of that which once hath been.

- Coleridge

What greetings smile, what farewells wave,
What loved ones enter and depart!
The good, the beautiful, the brave,
The Heaven-lent treasures of the heart!
How conscious seems the frozen sod

The oak-leaves rustle, and the dry grass bends
Beneath the shadowy feet of lost or absent friends.

Sweet human hand and lips and eye,

Dear heavenly friend that canst not die;

Strange friend, past, present and to be;

Loved deeplier, darklier understood;

Behold I dream a dream of good,

And mingle all the world with thee.

Thy voice is on the rolling air;

I hear thee where the waters run;

Thou standest in the rising sun,

And in the setting thou art fair.

Not mine the sad and freezing dream

Of souls that, with their earthly mould,

Cast off the loves and joys of old,—

No!—I have friends in Spirit Land,—
Not shadows in a shadowy band,
Not others, but themselves are they.

And still I think of them the same

As when the Master's summons came.

- Whittier

The way is short, O friend,
That reaches out before us;
Dod's tender heavens above us bend,
His love is smiling o'er us;
A little while is ours
For sorrow or for laughter;
I'll lay the hand you love in yours
On the shore of the Hereafter.
