TOBY'S DINNER.

I F you please, my little master,
You have quite forgotten me;
Don't you know that I am hungry,
Hungry as a dog can be?
All the morning we've been playing
In the garden, I and you;
You have eaten all your dinner,
What will hungry Toby do?

Merrily laughed Toby's master,
"I forgot you quite," he owns;
"Come with me, and we'll together
See if we can't find some bones!"
Off they scampered to the kitchen,
On a plate, beneath a chair,
There is Toby's dinner waiting,
Waiting to be eaten there.
